ABR September issue highlights

Highlights of the September issue include:

- Biographer and memoirist Brenda Niall reviews Loving Words, a collection of love letters between the original Australian literary power couple Vance and Nettie Palmer, edited by Deborah Jordan.
- Gideon Haigh reviews great US journalist Seymour Hersh’s memoir of his distinguished and controversial career including the revelations about atrocities at My Lai and Abu Ghraib.
- Stephen Mills - Academic, author, and former speechwriter to Bob Hawke - reviews former New South Wales Premier Bob Carr’s episodic new political memoir.
- From the ABR Archive - we revisit ABR Editor Peter Rose’s 2001 review of Jacqueline Kent’s biography of legendary Australian editor Beatrice Davis, A Certain Style, to coincide with the publication of a new edition from NewSouth.
