

ABR is one of Australia's leading literary/arts magazines, with a major influence, circulation, and authorship. Our diverse features and celebrated contributors attract readers around the world. We publish book and arts reviews, commentary, essays, interviews, travel writing and new creative writing. Our content is encyclopedic and thus comparable to that of TLS and NYRB. Through the Calibre Essay Prize and the ABR Fellowship program, we publish some of the finest long-form journalism in the country.

ABR enjoys close relations with the academy. Monash University and Flinders University are both sponsors of the magazine. We publish a who's who of Australian and international academics, and we also support early-career academics and PhD students. Major world university libraries look to Australian Book Review (ABR) for quality journalism.

ABR would be a great addition to your library's digital resources collection. Now that ABR is no longer available via Informit, ABR Online is an even more important digital resource for academics and students. Why not trial the magazine now for your institution?
