

AUSTRALIAN BOOK REVIEW DAHL TRUST FELLOWSHIP

Guidelines

WHO CAN APPLY?

Any writer with a publication record (books, creative writing, essays or journalism) is eligible. Applicants must be Australian citizens or have permanent resident status in Australia. ABR staff and Board members are ineligible. Contributors to the magazine are encouraged to apply.

WHAT IS ABR OFFERING?

The Fellow will receive $5000 – half on commencement of the Fellowship, half on publication. The Fellow will receive one economy return airfare to Melbourne (if necessary). No contribution to accommodation costs is possible. The Fellow will work closely with the Editor of ABR.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES

During the course of the Fellowship, the Fellow will produce a non-fiction article of 7000 to 8000 words on any aspect of eucalypts. A firm requirement will be the completion of the article in time for publication in the 2014 Environment Issue (October). The article will appear in both the print and online editions. The Fellow will take part in a round-table discussion and in a public event. The Fellow will also be available for media coverage.

FAMILIARITY WITH AUSTRALIAN BOOK REVIEW

Applicants must demonstrate familiarity with ABR – its style, its tenor, its interests. If you are not familiar with the magazine you should become so before applying. Previous Fellowship articles will give you a clear sense as to how we present these major features (e.g. Helen Ennis's 'Olive Cotton at Spring Forest' in the July–August 2013 issue). Visit our website to purchase copies or to subscribe to ABR Online. Applicants should also acquaint themselves with the Bjarne K. Dahl Trust

SELECTION PROCESS

The Fellowship will be awarded by Australian Book Review on the advice of a committee including the Editor of ABR. We will announce the decision in April 2014. No correspondence will be entered into once the decision has been announced. ABR reserves the right not to award a Fellowship during a particular round.
